TOKYO REPORTS U. S. LANDING

Japs Say Troops Land on Marshalls but U. S. Sources Are Silent.

By The Associated Press

Invasion winds blew around pivotal Japanese bases in the central Pacific today, fanned by thundering assaults of Army and Navy bombers and the guns of probably the greatest American task force ever sent against the Nipponese.

Tokyo hinted that American troops already have landed in the Marshalls athwart Japan's first line of defensive bases. One broadcast declared "it has been made clear to us that the enemy has taken a new offensive operation against our Marshal islands group."

But strict radio silence dictated by security reasons blanketed the movements of the mighty naval forces, including battleships and aircraft carriers, which bombarded the Marshalls from the air and from the sea over the week-end.

Invasion Not Mentioned

The Navy made no mention of any invasion operation as such in announcements yesterday telling of a seaplane raid Sunday night on Wake island, 700 miles north of the heavily-fortified Marshalls, together with earlier army Seventh airforce attacks on bases in the mid-Pacific island chain.

The strike at Wake, delivered by two squadrons of Coronado seaplanes, was described officially as strong. It was regarded at Pearl Harbor as undoubtedly timed to knock out the enemy airfield and prevent either Japanese air reinforcements for the

House Rejects Roll Call Vote On Bill for Soldier Ballot

Action Represents Severe Setback To Backers of Uniform Ticket for Servicemen.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—Brushing aside President Roosevelt's suggestion that members "stand up and be counted," the house refused today to provide a roll call vote on legislation to create uniform federal ballot machinery for the armed services.

Representing a severe set-back for federal-ballot forces, the vote on whether to have a record roll call on the uniform ballot bill was rejected 233 to 160.

Thus advocates of a "states rights" bill held the upper hand as the house began four hours of debate on the sizzling issue. A decisive vote was likely tomorrow. The senate has passed a measure leaving the soldier vote problem to the states, but now is considering new legislation.

If the house had ordered a separate vote on the Worley (D-Tex) bill, it would have departed from custom, since the rules do not provide for a roll call on proposed amendments or substitutes to pending legislation.

The federal ballot (Worley) bill will be offered as a substitute for the "states' rights" bill reported by the house elections committee. This is a modified form of the measure previously passed by the senate.

Party Lines Drawn

Democrats and Republicans clashed in the senate today over responsibility for delaying a vote on the administration's war ballot bill for the armed services.

On the house side, meanwhile, Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts predicted the majority of Republicans would oppose a special rule to call vote on the war ballot legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) declared that the pace "we're going the soldiers will not be lucky to vote in the presidential election of 1972."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) countered with the assertion Democratic leaders in the house were to blame for holding up the legislation. Taft declared the speaker and majority leader of the house had blocked floor consideration until today of a senate-passed "states rights" bill, which President Roosevelt denounced last week as "a fraud."

"The proponents of the war ballot bill have done everything they can to stall," Taft charged. "The bill in the house could have been passed two weeks ago."

Rep. Martin's statement came after a conference of Republican members of the house. Martin said it would be an extraordinary procedure to adopt a special rule for a record vote on the uniform federal ballot bill after approval by the house elections committee of a "state's rights" measure.

DOUBT FRANCO WILL BREAK WITH HITLER

Spanish Sources Question Prediction of South American Diplomat.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 1 — Both pro-Franco and anti-Franco elements among Spaniards here expressed doubt today that Generalissimo Francisco Franco would go to the extent of breaking off Spain's diplomatic relations with the axis despite American - British economic and diplomatic pressure.

A diplomat in Buenos Aires had predicted Spain would cut off relations this week, and both axis and neutral sources told of a burst of diplomatic activity at Madrid.

It had been expected British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would make a statement in commons today on British-Spanish relations but by mid-afternoon he had not appeared and it was unlikely he would today.

Franco's adherents who profess neutrality, argued that the Germans across the border in France are a more serious immediate menace to Spain than are the United States and Britain at a distance, even with their power blockading Spain from the sea.

Hopes for Nazi Victory

Opponents of Franco added to this that he is ideologically pro-German and hopes for a German victory. They said a Spanish rupture with the axis seemed probable only if Franco were forced out by a faction or coalition which was convinced the allies will win the war.

The Spanish embassy declined comment on the report that Spain would break with the axis.

Among the developments in the situation was a broadcast by the German-controlled radio saying the allies had threatened to cut off Spain's food supplies and had told Franco he must "submit or fight."

In Madrid, morning newspapers carried on their front pages a brief Washington dispatch that "the American department of state in accord with the British government gave an order for shipments of petroleum for Spain in the month of February to be suspended, according to an official communique."

The newspapers made no comment and gave no further details.

U. S. Cuts Off Oil

The United States already has cut off all February oil shipments to Spain and is reconsidering relations with Madrid "in the light of trends in Spanish policy," Washington announced Saturday. Britain also is taking a sterner line toward Franco.

Identity of the South American diplomat who was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch from Buenos Aires as predicting Spain would break with the axis was not disclosed.

This source said the United States and Britain now had brought Franco to a point where he must declare himself for one side or the other. A break with the allies is virtually out of the question, he declared, because Spain desperately needs the oil and supplies which she has been

Russians Capture Kingisepp, 8 Miles from Estonian Border

Town Was Last German Defense Post East of Border of Balkan State.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 1 — [illegible] army has captured Kingisepp, Moscow announced today.

Kingisepp (Yamburg) [illegible] Russian frontier station on the [illegible] Estonian border and [illegible] German bastion before Leningrad. It is some five miles east of the actual border line and 19 miles from Narva, next important Red army objective.

It is a major rail station on the line to Reval, capital of Germany-occupied Estonia.

The capture by Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad armies was announced in a special order of the day from Marshal Premier Joseph Stalin who called the town "an important strongpoint in German defenses on the Narva direction."

It was taken by "a skillful outflanking maneuver," Stalin said. He ordered a victory salute of 12 salvos from 124 Moscow guns in celebration.

Both the Moscow communique and front line dispatches reported Russian successes all along the northern front. Soviet troops crossed the Luga river, 27 miles southeast of Kingisepp, and captured Lipa, two miles further west, in addition to forcing the water barriers at several other points.

The Germans apparently were unable to stand up under the relentless hammering of the Russian power drive. A Moscow war bulletin said:

"Retreating under blows of the Soviet troops the enemy is abandoning guns, heavy mortars and stores of military supplies. The enemy suffered heavy losses of manpower."

In addition to his frontal attack on Kingisepp and other enemy positions along the pre-war [illegible] Swedish, between the Gulf [illegible] and Lake Peipus, 30 miles to the south, Govorov sent [illegible] force down the Leningrad-[illegible] railway toward Luga, captured Dno Saya on the way. Both columns, spearheads were less than 80 miles from Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army moving up from the Lake Ilmen [illegible].

Two Women and Man Questioned in Slaying

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. Two women and a man were questioned for more than six hours today in the police "third degree" in connection with the slaying Jan. 19 in the Drake hotel of Mrs. Adele Brodie Williams, wealthy wife of a Washington diplomat.

Joseph Pope, assistant state's attorney, said the women were sisters, but declined to disclose their identities. He also withheld the name of the man. One of the sisters, Pope said, was employed in the hotel where Mrs. Williams was shot by a woman accomplice.

Police Captain Lloyd Reynolds said all three had been subjected to lie tests under the "third degree" but that the results were "negative." He said they would be questioned again later in the day.

Investigators refused to give any further details except that one of the women [illegible] the hotel. The woman might be the slayer, has been described as between 35 and 50 years old.

U. S. PLANES HIT FRENCH COAST

Bombers Maintain Most Sustained Raid of War, Berlin Still Burning.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 1—Maintaining the most sustained air offensive in history, American heavy bombers smashed at the French invasion coast yesterday in the 30th allied assault on that area in a month while bomb-carrying Thunderbolts dropped their loads on a Nazi airfield in Holland.

The raids, carried out after the RAF's 11th winter saturation attack on Berlin reportedly had left no quarter of the capital unscarred by rilled bombs, were made without loss.

The OWI said the Swedish newspaper Uppsala Nya Tidning published a Bern dispatch reporting "about 6,000 persons" killed in Berlin Saturday night, and that some 5,000 were reported killed during the last raid on Frankfurt where 50,000 people are reported to be bombed out."

Saturday Casualties

This estimate on casualties in the Saturday night raid on Berlin followed an estimate Sunday by the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda that 6,000 persons died in the Friday night raid ranging to 71,000 the total killed in 11 raids up to Saturday.

The British radio in a broadcast recorded by CBS said "some important German government offices have been transferred from Berlin to Breslau" which so far has escaped allied raids.

Allied bombs now have brought death and destruction into every quarter of Berlin, a Swedish cor-

YOUTHS INJURED IN AUTO-TRAIN CRASH

Marion Boy and Cousin Hurt in Silver St. Mishap.

A Marion youth and a cousin from Kentucky, narrowly escaped death in an auto-train engine accident last night. Both were injured, one seriously.

Richard Trimmer, 16, of Louisville, Ky., visiting a cousin, Donald Trimmer, 17 of 880 North Main street, was in City hospital today with face lacerations and a jaw fracture. Donald Trimmer was dismissed from the hospital after treatment of lacerations of his chin and knees.

Driving east on Silver street about 9:45 p. m., the youths evidently failed to notice the approach of a yard engine at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing, railroad officials said today. Westbound traffic was stopped. The collision of the car and locomotive damaged the front end of the car considerably.

The youths had been to visit their grandmother, Mrs. Louella Trimmer, on West Fairground street and Donald was driving as they were returning to his home. They were taken to the hospital in the W. H. Gunder and Sons ambulance. Marion Trimmer, father of Richard, was called to Marion from Louisville because of the accident. Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Trimmer of North Main street.

QUAKE HITS TURKEY

By The Associated Press

ANKARA, TURKEY, Feb. 1 — A powerful earthquake destroyed the Turkish town of Gerede, 130 mile east of Istanbul, killing and injuring many of its 25,000 inhabitants today. The tremors lasted 50 seconds and were felt throughout Turkey. Gerede, in northern Turkey, is some 60 miles from the Black sea.

Plans Mapped for Marion's Home Front Pledge Campaign

Plans for a Home Front Pledge campaign to be conducted the last two weeks in February got under way when men from the Columbus district office of the OPA, representatives of the local OPA office, mayors of villages in the county, and representatives of local organizations met yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A.

David M. Harrison, district price executive, discussed the importance of the price control program and pointed out that the OPA is the only federal administrative agency standing between the consumer and retail merchants. He explained the working of the OPA and emphasized the necessity for consumers keeping a continuous check on price lists in order to keep prices and points on commodities within the legal range.

Robert T. Mason, chairman for the meeting, presided for an open discussion and Mr. Harrison answered questions asked by representatives of the various organizations.

According to tentative plans outlined in the meeting the campaign will be conducted by the block leaders of the Civilian Defense, and will be launched with a public meeting and program. Organizations will be asked to assist with the campaign by calling attention to the objectives, both in meetings and elsewhere, and it was emphasized that, in order to put the campaign over as it should be, the cooperation of all groups and individuals will be needed.

The Home Front Pledge is as follows: "I Will Pay No More Than Top Legal Prices. I Will Accept No Rationed Goods Without Giving Up Ration Stamps."

Mr. Harrison was accompanied here by Joseph Lanville, head of the general commodities section, and A. P. Leibbrand, price panel coordinator of the Columbus district office.

Mrs. D. T. Mills Named Day Nursery Director

Mrs. D. T. Mills was named director at the day nursery for children of employed mothers, in a meeting of the Day Nursery executive board last night at the nursery. Mrs. Mills, who has been acting director for the last month, succeeds Mrs. Patricia Jackson, who resigned.

CASSINO LINE SHOWS SIGNS OF CRUMBLING

Anzio Invasion Force Now 15 Miles from Point of Landing.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Feb. 1. Allied troops bursting forward in a big offensive from their invasion beachhead have struck to the outskirts of Campoleone, only 16 miles southeast of Rome, and also to the edge of Cisterna, communications town on the Appian Way 14 miles northeast of Anzio, headquarters announced today.

Campoleone is 15 miles above the invasion port of Anzio.

American troops on the main front north of Cassino have hammered out new gains, and seized 250 prisoners.

A field dispatch said German defenses above Cassino were crumbling.

U. S. units, northeast of Anzio have reached within half a mile of Cisterna, key rail and road junction and large air base. The Germans were well dug in on the border of the city and resisting strongly.

British Push North

British forces pushing northward entered Aprilia to a coordinated assault to the edge of Campoleone.

The twin attacks were the first big offensive since the landings.

An allied officer said the Nazis brought troop from the area north of Rome to meet the allied blows. But the Navy said allied landings of reinforcements and supplies were proceeding on schedule.

Despite bad weather allied planes meanwhile smashed at airfields at Klagenfurt, in southern Germany, and at Udine and Aviano in northern Italy.

On the main Fifth army front to the south, American, British, and French forces surged forward despite repeated German counter-blows. The British took Mt. Natale, about a mile northeast of Minturno on the western end of the line. The Americans took 250 prisoners north of Cassino.

18 Nazi Planes Destroyed

Action was fierce in the Adriatic coast sector where Canadian troops of the Eighth army pushed ahead against stiff resistance.

Eighteen German planes were destroyed during the day for a loss of four allied aircraft.

A Navy bulletin disclosed light allied coastal forces, darting close to the Yugoslav shore, sank a large schooner and a small tanker between Silvanno and Split Saturday night.

Medium bombers blasted a railway in the Adriatic port of San Benedetto.

The communique also reported an intruder raid by fighters over airfields in southern France Saturday night.

Beyond the 18 Nazi planes shot down others were reported wrecked on land.

Flying Fortresses with P-38 Lightning and P-47 Thunderbolt escorts caught German defenses flat-footed at Klagenfurt, covering the field, hangars and workshops with a shower of bombs. They did not meet a single fighter or any flak, and pilots said many fires were started, with three hangars probably destroyed.

Sixteen enemy planes were downed in blows at Udine, 60 miles northeast of Venice and Aviano, 45 miles above Venice. Sixteen other planes were destroyed aground.

These three bases are of vital importance to Nazi long-range fighters and bombers.

There was little air activity yesterday over the invasion beachhead, but allied planes hit heavily at enemy communications near that area.

Marion Soldier Wounded by Bomb

Word received by the family of Pvt. John Franklin Gorenflo, who was wounded in action on the Italian front Jan. 3, told of a wound to his right arm. Pvt. Gorenflo in a dictated letter to his family said a bomb fragment is lodged in his arm making it impossible for him to write. He is in a North African hospital.

Pvt. Gorenflo's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gorenflo of East Mark street, received a letter from him the day that he was wounded. The letter received this week followed notice by the government a week ago of his injuries.

A further report of Pvt. Gorenflo's experiences on the Italian front appeared in The Star Jan. 22.

TAX BILL GETS FINAL TOUCHES

Measure Sent To Legislative Experts To Be Put in Shape for Passage.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 The new $2,135,800,000 tax bill which is counted on to swell the government's total income to more than $43,360,000,000 a year went into legislative drafting today for final passing touches.

As approved last night by a joint conference committee of senate and house the measure proposes to raise more than a billion dollars through sharply increased excise taxes, about half a billion extra from corporate excess profits taxes, apparently $684,000,000 from individual income taxpayers, and the balance from higher postal rates.

Predicts Approval

Senator George (D-Ga), head of the senate conferees predicted the bill would be approved in both houses tomorrow.

The conference adjusted a number of contentious issues, including amendments to the war contracts renegotiation act which in general tend to modify the impact of renegotiation upon contractors.

House conferees waged a futile last-ditch action to tax pari-mutuel betting. The senators, including Majority Leader Barkley of horse-breeding Kentucky, insisted taxation of racing be left to the states.

Into the bill, however, went such new excise rates as these: 20 per cent sales taxes on furs, jewelry, cosmetics, toilet articles, luggage and women's handbags; 30 per cent on night club and cabaret checks; $9 a gallon on 100-proof whisky (it's now $6); a penny on each nickel on admission to movies, ball games and other amusements, 15 per cent on railroad, ship, plane and bus tickets; 15 per cent on local telephone service, and many others.

Airmail Postage Up

Airmail postage goes up from 6 cents an ounce to 8; locally delivered letters will cost 3 cents instead of 2; money order, registered mail fees and other special postal charges will be higher.

While part of the bill becomes law by Feb. 19, the new excise rates take effect March 1. The postal increases become effective 30 days after enactment.

Individual income taxpayers no longer will get a 10 per cent earned income credit in computing their normal tax, nor will they be allowed to deduct federal excise taxes they have paid. The victory tax becomes a straight 3 per cent tax on all income over $624 a year, regardless of family status.

The income tax changes will not affect computations on the 1943 returns due March 15.

In dealing with renegotiation, the conferees adopted the provision exempting contracts for less than $500,000 from any renegotiation. At present, only those of less than $100,000 are so exempted. Also given exemption were contracts for agricultural products in the raw state.

Knocked out in conference was the senate's attempt to write in a special exemption for contracts covering machinery and machine tools having a life expectancy of more than 10 years. Subcontracting was left about as at present.

As approved, the bill would terminate renegotiations next Dec. 31, with the President authorized to change this date by six months either way to meet developments.

Analyst Discusses Question of Nazis' Reserve Strength

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

[illegible] Hitler's reserve strength, however, no longer is sufficient for him to [illegible] operations [illegible] stand.

Cart Before Horse

As for proof of Axis strength being shown by allied failure to invade it, long Europe, it takes me that this is putting the cart before the horse. The reason the allies haven't invaded yet is because they only now are acquiring the necessary equipment for the job, owing to being caught unprepared at the outset of the war. Allied strength is mounting by leaps and bounds, while German striking-power is going down rapidly.

We don't know Hitler's exact strength until we get an army of invasion ashore in western Europe and put him under pressure from two sides. That's the only gauge by which we can measure his power. So long as France is uninvaded, the conflict might continue indefinitely.

Even after the German armies have been driven back to the defenses of their own frontier, they might hold out for a considerable time. Desperation gives added strength. Leningrad, with its vast population of 3,000,000 hung on for 17 months while completely surrounded by Boche and staggering from hunger.

So Hitler's fortress might produce fireworks. However, the comparison with Leningrad isn't exact, for the final attack on the reich will be spearheaded by the greatest fleet of warplanes ever assembled. Thus the Nazis will be beset from without and from within. Hitler will be entirely dependant on reserve resources in his own cupboard, which is becoming Mother Hubbardish.

German Supplies Scarce

A news dispatch from Lisbon yesterday reported that the Nazi regime is requisitioning everything from goose feathers to paper bags to stretch its dwindling resources. That's not new, however, for as long ago as last July British and Foreign sources in London stated that, because of allied bombing, German industry had lost the production race essential to victory. They said that the reich definitely had passed the peak of production and was on the down grade.

It then was cited that there was a steady fall in steel production, a narrow margin of oil, an inability to replace vital railway equipment, reduction in tank and airplane production, and other important symptoms of industrial deterioration. Last fall Prof. Hunke, German economic leader, stated that "it cannot be denied that the whole future stands under the sign of destruction." About the same time Edwin Shanke, Associated Press correspondent in Stockholm and long in Germany before America entered the war, reported that the reich's raw material supplies had reached such a low level that the most extreme economy must be practiced.

Since then the Anglo-American air forces have raised havoc with German war industries and communications. Thus we can safely say that Hitler's strength in resources lies chiefly in his slim reserve supplies.

RIGID DEFERMENT RULES IN EFFECT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — New and more rigid draft deferment and reclassification rules went into effect today with about 2½ million men remaining in dependency groups as selective service boards aimed for the goal of a 600,000-man induction for the first two months of 1944.

The new regulations provide:

No registrant shall be inducted until he has passed a thorough physical examination by Army-Navy doctors at least 21 days previously.

Registrants from 18 through 21 no longer will be granted occupational deferments unless they are engaged in farming or a state selective service director certifies that a potential inductee is necessary in industry.

Erie Gives $50,000 Boost to County's Sale

An unexpected $50,000 boost for Marion county's Fourth War Loan drive was reported yesterday when Robert E. Woodruff, president of the Erie railroad who formerly was Kent division superintendent of the road here, ordered $50,000 in bonds from a Marion bank in behalf of the railroad.

It was the second time the Erie had credited Marion county with part of its war bond purchases to help put over county war loan drives.

Notice of the purchase was sent to Chester C. Roberts, industrial chairman of the Marion County War Finance Committee.

County Invests In 4th War Loan

The county gave the Fourth War Loan total a $50,000 boost yesterday when one-year 7s of a per cent certificates in that amount were purchased by Marion E. Hinkle, county treasurer, out of county funds in his hands. It was the second time county funds had been used to buy the short-term federal securities.

This action does not tie up any funds needed by political subdivisions nor does it represent any surplus of funds, the treasurer emphasizes. In the collection and distribution of tax money a balance considerably more than that amount is always on hand.

SCANT HOPE HELD TO HUMANIZE JAPS

U. S. Prisoners Unlikely To Get Better Treatment.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — Repeated failure of diplomatic efforts by this government to curb Japanese atrocities apparently has left the thousands of Americans still in enemy hands with scant hope of better treatment.

The only hope still held by some military leaders and government experts on Japanese psychology is that the Tokyo militarists soon will see the handwriting on the wall.

To make it plainer that the day of reckoning is not too far distant, Senator Chavez (D-NM) demanded the war in the Pacific be stepped up immediately.

Chavez in a senate speech criticized withholding of the recent atrocity report for more than a year, then announced he was making formal representations to President Roosevelt and to secretaries Stimson and Knox "asking that we get action now."

Failure of diplomatic efforts was disclosed by the state department last night with publication of a detailed list of 89 protests, warnings and demands forwarded to the Tokyo government, through Switzerland, over the past two years.

Covering misdeeds ranging from petty graft to torture, these accused the Japanese of failure either to abide by international agreements for the treatment of captives or to observe "the international common law of decency." Three protests were based on the Philippine atrocities, the execution of fliers in the Tokyo air raid, and reports made by repatriates who have returned to this country.

The departments' action in publishing the record emphasizes the reason generally given for adoption of the government's — new policy — that the lot of prisoners is beyond hope of improvement by diplomacy and that publicity may help.

The state department record, a 10-page document, closes with an account of two protests dispatched to Tokyo last Thursday, the day before the war and navy departments made public the stories of Philippine atrocities.

Among the 18 counts contained in one protest were the following the Japanese punished Americans merely because they complained about the conditions of their captivity.

The Japanese have not permitted Swiss representatives and those of the International Red Cross to visit all places where Americans are held.

They forced civilians to perform labor other than that connected with camp administration, maintenance or management.

They compelled war prisoners to perform labor directly related to war operations.

LONDON, Feb. 1—In the first official comment from Tokyo on recent allied revelations of Japanese atrocities, a Japanese government spokesman asserted last night the disclosures were part of "a look for cruelties committed by the allies themselves," a DNB broadcast from Tokyo declared.

"It is furthermore intended to stir up emotion among their own people, whose enthusiasm for prosecution of the war was considerably waning," the broadcast quoted the spokesman, Sadao Iguchi, as saying.

NAZIS DESTROY ART

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Feb. 1—A German incendiary squad in Italy has wantonly destroyed priceless works of art and important archives of European history dating from 1268 to 1811 despite a plea by Italian authorities to spare them, War Minister Sir James Grigg told the house of commons today. The outrage occurred Sept. 30 at Livardi, where the Italians had deposited art treasures from Naples—886 cases of selected documents from state archives.

Marion Co. Soldier Sees Air Raid from Ship Under Attack

News Report Tells of Sgt. Clyde Freshour and Others Aboard Landing Craft in Anzio Bay During Dive Bomber Raid.

The thrill of watching an air battle on the new invasion front on the Italian coast below Rome was recently experienced by Sgt. Clyde Freshour, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Freshour, live near LaRue. Sgt. Freshour, who viewed the raid from a ship in the enemy's attack zone, is mentioned in a story by Associated Press Correspondent Kenneth L. Dixon in which Dixon describes the "air umbrella" over the invasion coast. He tells of Allied air supremacy over the area of operations. Even then, he says, our fighters are not entirely free from air raids, as in the description of one of these raids that Sgt. Freshour figured. He was with a group of water soaked soldiers watching the aerial combat from a landing boat. Dixon's account of the battle follows.

Anzio bay is sheltered by a protective air patrol of the 12th Air Support Command, and its interceptors and fighter-bombers have done a good cover job of it today. Yet we have had six alerts and three air raids up to now, which is only mid-afternoon.

I have seen at least two enemy planes shot down.

The third raid picked this anchored little landing ship as the object of its dive bombing affections a few minutes ago and four ME-109s laid a 500-pounder apiece.

They screamed down out of the afternoon sun and crossed over from starboard to port, pulling [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] about 75 feet above the port [illegible].

The [illegible] from the first [illegible] that [illegible] through the [illegible] from the passage [illegible] and came to [illegible] I [illegible] them [illegible] the last [illegible] up.

"Geysers" Shade Sky.

Then [illegible] geysers of dirty debris-laden water [illegible] upward, shot [illegible] in front of and [illegible] ship, slate gray. They [illegible] over the ship and then cascaded down over us, soaking the American soldiers caught on the deck and splattering the British crew on the bridge and at the guns.

Pieces of [illegible] rattled against the starboard bulkhead. The entire ship trembled violently and shook and rattled in its steel skin. Each terrific concussion rocked it with a terrific jolt.

From over my head and from other ships nearby all guns were going wild. As the water fell I could see tracers slicing red streaks into the sky.

The Nazi planes pulled out and reached for altitude. Suddenly, one of them fell away, seemed to hang for a moment, and then went spinning down in a smoky trail. The shouting soldiers pointed and screamed, still shaking the water off themselves. They got one! They got one!

A tiny puff of white pulled out of the vertical smoke streak a few hundred feet before the plane plunged burning into the sea.

Through Spyglass.

"The pilot bailed out!" yelled Sgt. Clyde Freshour, of Marion, Ohio, who had been soaked to the skin as he watched the diving planes through a long spyglass he had been trying to sell to his buddies earlier in the day.

"I'd better give it away now," he grinned. "Look what it almost got me into."

There were only two casualties. Capt. Philip L. Campagna of Chicago, battalion medical officer of the aviation engineers on board, said both men were wounded only slightly.

Lt.-Commander Arthur James Bell of London, captain of the little 300-foot ship designed to land tanks in beachhead assaults but now carrying engineers and their equipment, said it was his closest call of this war. The big Britisher was sunk three times in the last war.

Boosts Church Attendance.

Said the chaplain, Capt. Philip Oxnam, 27, of Boston, the son of the Methodist bishop of the Boston area as he wiped the oily water from his face:

"Everybody will be at church this Sunday."

It was the day's third raid on the ships in our part of the beachhead bay. One other enemy plane had been knocked down in the morning.

As far as I could see a near-hit on one landing ship was the only damage, and all through the day allied Spitfires, Warhawks, Mustangs and Invaders came and went in the skies over our heads. They chased Jerry away from the bay several times.

Comparatively speaking, that was excellent air cover.

Most of the planes upstairs were ours, but you can't keep all the Jerries out all the time. It's too big a sky.

Freshour in Two Invasions.

Sgt. Freshour enlisted in the Army Nov. 13, 1941, and has been overseas since June, 1942. He participated in the African and Sicilian invasions, and entered Italy with an engineer company soon after the initial landings on the mainland.

He was graduated from LaRue High school. Before his enlistment he was employed at the Ravenna Arsenal, Ravenna, O. He had also worked on farms near LaRue.

German souvenirs are on the way from Italy, according to his parents, who last heard from him on Jan. 19. They had heard the news of his experience during the air battle in a radio report. Among trophies that Sgt. Freshour is sending home are a German flag and two German swords. He has already sent other small items, according to his mother.

PACIFIC

Marshalls or counterblows against U. S. naval units.

Land-based army bombers, in the 25th day of the aerial offensive to soften up the Marshalls, smashed at Kwajalein, Milli, Maloelap, Wotje and Jaluit atolls Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

The pattern of attack suggested the strategy used in the campaign which wrested the Gilbert islands from the Japanese last November. There, too, a series of air raids was climaxed by close-to-shore naval shelling and more aerial bombardment to clear the way for assault troops.

Plane Losses Mount

In the southwest Pacific, Japanese plane losses at Rabaul mounted to more than 550 for January as Solomons-based allied raiders destroyed an additional 36 in damaging sweeps over the New Britain base Saturday.

Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, commander of the South Pacific air force assigned to pound at the shattered enemy stronghold, told interviewers at an advanced airbase that the Japanese will attempt to withdraw key personnel and vital equipment when the cost of defending Rabaul became too high.

"I can't say when it will be knocked out," he commented, "but we're on schedule."

Allied bombers sank two 2500-ton Japanese freighters and 750-ton cargo ship at Hansa bay on the northeast coast of New Guinea. To the south, Australian troops pushed to within 30 miles of American forces who landed at Saidor Jan. 2 in a move menacing the big Japanese base at Madang.

Returning from a visit to the Ledo front, Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell told a press conference in New Delhi that construction of the new land route to China was the "start on an attempt to reopen communication with China."

Japs Lost 1,450 Planes in 6 Months

ADVANCNED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Feb. 1—Spotlighting the speed with which Japan's constantly reinforced southwest Pacific air force is meeting piecemeal destruction, a South Pacific naval spokesman today reported 1,450 enemy planes downed in the past six months.

His figures make the Rabaul-Bougainville campaign one of the greatest allied air victories of the war.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today added another 36 destroyed aloft or on the ground at Rabaul, New Britain, in raids Saturday. Headquarters disclosed nearly 550 of the defenders' lost planes were downed in this area in January alone.

Tobera and Lakunai airfields, protecting Rabaul, have now been rendered temporarily unserviceable, the South Pacific spokesman reported. Solomons-based planes under Adm. William F. Halsey have been striking daily at Rabaul, and at enemy positions in Bougainville, northern Solomons.

HE'S OUT TOMORROW

Faithful To Wait on Gobbler's Knob Seer.

By The Associated Press

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Feb. 1 — The famed groundhog of Gobbler's Knob emerges tomorrow from his winter-long sleep for his first wartime prognostication and a few of the old guard of the town's Groundhog club plan to shuffle out to get his weather forecast.

Dr. F. A. Lorenzo, 63, perennial president of the club, said the customary fanfare to greet the "seer of seers" and "peer of prognosticators" will be lacking, but:

"We'll be up at the crack of dawn to see what he has to say."

Censorship stopped Johnny Woodchuck's annual predictions about weather, wars, politics, and taxes for the past two years, but times have changed and a report now can be made on whether he sees his shadow—which in the groundhog book means six more weeks of winter ahead.

Dr. Lorenzo said the groundhog "as a rule always sees his shadow" but that "the weather we've been having lately may throw him off this year."

Hardly were the words out of the good doctor's mouth until the June-in-January spell broke and an icy wind drove in sleet and snow.

The OWI's report, made public last night and based on War and Navy department figures, show these totals:

Dead, 33,153, wounded, 49,518; missing 33,617 and prisoners, 29,896.

YOUR HEALTH

Corrective Surgery

BABIES AND children do not often need surgical operations. The most important decision to make is not so much whether an operation should be done as when. If an operation is indicated at the time of birth for some congenital defect it had better be done within the first 48 hours rather than later. Curiously, a new born baby stands surgery better than when it is a week or two or a month older.

A frequent congenital anomaly is hernia. It may be of the inguinal variety essentially the same as the common hernia of adults, or umbilical (at the navel).

Inguinal hernia in a baby is more easily repaired after the first year. So the best advice is to wait. The yarn truss, although not curative, should be used until time for the operation. When the hernia is too big for the truss to hold it, or because of the inaptitude of the parents or the intolerance of the child, operation is advisable regardless of age.

Umbilical hernias which protrude only one-half to one inch above the level of the abdominal wall, and with a ring that admits only the tip of the little finger, can almost always be cured by strapping with adhesive tape. So it is better to withhold surgery on these until it is seen whether conservative treatment will be successful. Some umbilical hernias, however, require surgery as soon after birth as possible. It is for the surgeon to decide which these are.

Undescended testis, which may be mistaken for hernia should not be operated on until between nine and twelve years.

Among other congenital defects, harelip should be repaired as early in infancy as possible during the third or fourth week of life when the feeding habits have been established and a continuous weight gain is apparent. The longer the operation is delayed the larger the defect becomes because of the lateral pull of the muscles of the face and lip.

If the harelip is complicated by cleft palate, repair should not be undertaken in early infancy because the tissues on either side of the mouth are too narrow. The best time is at the age of one and a half to two years. Great improvement has been made in these operations, not only in principle but in the skill of those who now undertake such procedures. If the nose can be closed off and the posterior palate repaired, the child will be able to speak and eat without difficulty.

What we have been describing are congenital defects. The diseases (not defects) for which surgery is indicated and which appear in the early period of life are few and not very frequent. Appendicitis leads in frequency the list with intestinal obstruction second. In both of these surgery is indicated as soon as the diagnosis is made.

Both appendicitis and intestinal obstruction present the symptom-complex known as the acute abdomen. The adult with an acute abdomen will tell you about pain, but the baby can't tell, so you have to guess from the signs — restlessness, distention, vomiting over and over again, passage of one bloody stool, otherwise constipation, fever, crying.

Girl Scout Official To Be in Marion

Miss Agnes E. Jones of the Girl Scout national staff, working out of the Cleveland regional office will be in Marion Thursday, Friday and Saturday to confer with members of the Marion Girl Scout Council on several topics of importance to local Girl Scouting.

The Marion council, as have Girl Scout councils all over the country, has grown rapidly in the past year, and several communities near Marion have asked help in starting Girl Scout troops.

The rapid expansion of Girl Scouting in the Marion area, and the fact that the Marion council has been looking for a site for a permanent camp of its own have brought some new problems to the council. Miss Jones is coming to Marion primarily to talk over these problems with the Marion council.

Miss Jones has been the executive secretary of the Kewanee, Ill., Girl Scout Council, and later district secretary of the Hartford, Connecticut Girl Scout Council. She has had special Girl Scout training over a period of years at various Girl Scout national training schools.

Miss Jones will arrive in Marion Thursday and that evening will meet with the Girl Scout leaders at their regular Leaders' association meeting which will be held upstairs at the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. office at 198 West Center street at 7:30.

Friday afternoon, the camp committee of the council will meet with Miss Jones at the local Girl Scout office.

A special council meeting on Friday evening will be held at the home of Mrs. Fillmore Young, Girl Scout commissioner, at 8 o'clock.

Official Report Given on Employes' Vote

An official report of the vote last week among office employes of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., received from the National Labor Relations Board office in Cleveland, shows that the 163 persons voting cast their ballots in the following way: 107 favored the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, as bargaining agent, 34 voted against the union, two ballots were rejected and 20 persons did not vote. It was erroneously reported in Saturday's issue of The Star that the vote selecting the union as bargaining agent had been unanimous.

A Swedish naval officer, F. Oeberg writing in the Stockholm Tidningen, said the smashing Russian advance opened the possibility of an early Russian occupation of Baltisch port, on which the Soviets could command great areas of the Baltic.

The Dagens Nyheter Berlin correspondent said the Russians, if naval bases could be set up on the eastern Swedish and German Swedish coasts, some of the many raw materials of the German arsenal. Oeberg named the following steps to consolidate the Russian Baltic fleet: the 33,000-ton battleship October Revolution; the 8,000-ton cruisers Kirov and Maxim Gorky; the 2,000-ton destroyers Leningrad and Marshal Ten other destroyers of 1,700 tons each, numerous torpedo boats and some submarines.

Oeberg urged a strengthening of the Swedish destroyer force and asserted that in 1942, Russian submarines attacked Swedish merchant ships in Swedish waters.

VOTING PROBLEMS

Editor of The Star: Soldier vote or civilian vote—what good are they?

At present we have two major parties, namely, Republicans and Democrats.

An office seeker hails from one or the other for the prime purpose of obtaining office. He that obtains office is the one that hollers the loudest and makes the most promises, fully knowing that there is no law to hold him to them.

Why don't we go one step farther and pass a law to the effect of having each candidate placing his platform in writing along with his resignation fully signed by him? The minute he did not live up to his promise his resignation would go into effect. We then could keep replacing them until we obtained desired results.

To obtain this law or any other law one would have to use the referendum. Here one is licked before he starts, judging from past referendum voting.

The first thing you would be accused of is that old one about obtaining signers from the tele-

4TH WAR LOAN

We Can't All Be in the Armed Services

But . . . in all probability, EACH OF US could serve the war effort immeasureably if we participated WHOLE-HEARTEDLY in this 4th War Loan Bond Drive.

Are we in reality conscious of the cost of losing this war? Or have we only thought of the cost of winning it? Are we determined to be THE judge of exactly how much we will contribute toward either cost? Or shouldn't it occur to us that maybe we can only control our share of the cost of WINNING it?

After all is said and done, we are not being asked to contribute one penny . . . but only to LOAN our money at a guaranteed premium. The premium guarantee consists of "blood, sweat and tears" CONTRIBUTED by sons, daughters, wives, sweethearts, husbands, etc. . . . all true Americans!

We MUST NOT let them down!

Mother, This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Wonderful

Saves Real Money. No Cooking. Quick Results.

To get the most surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it beats them all for results.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Then add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really splendid cough syrup—about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a long time.

And for real, quick relief, it can't be beaten. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Arson Suspect Admits Firing Jap Flophouses

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1—Arson investigators quote a 40-year-old hotel clerk as saying "I guess I've set more than 200 fires," many of them in "cheap Jap flophouses" in Los Angeles' Japanese settlement shortly before and after Pearl Harbor.

"I tried to get 'em before they were chased out," the subject, who gave his name as Clarence Everett Steepleton, was quoted by Capt. Carl Halter, chief of the fire department arson squad.

Halter said the suspect declared he set his first fire, to a shanty in Empire, O., when he was six years old and that some years ago he ignited a Sisterville, W. Va., livery stable in which eight horses were killed.

The Zircon

The zircon is a mined stone found in crystalline rock. Most of the mines are in Ceylon, India-China and Siam. When cut for brilliance it ranks next to the diamond. While zircons may be shown in various colors including white, brown, yellow, red and blue, the blue stones are by far the most popular in this country.

Essentially an Oriental stone the zircon was once thought to prevent plague and illness. Today zircons are much desired for bracelets, necklaces, earrings, etc., as well as for rings.

Lifting the Siege of Leningrad

THE battle of the Russian cities, which has passed through climaxes at the gates of Moscow, in the streets of Stalingrad and back and forth through Kharkov, Kiev, Voronezh, Rostov, Orel, Smolensk and many others, has reached another climactic turning point in the lifting of the siege of Leningrad.

The expert observations of the scholars of strategy and the historians who soon will begin to prepare their accounts of the things that defeated the Germans in Russia must be awaited for full understanding of the Allies' part in the Russo-German war. But it is plain enough that the Germans needed them desperately and, being unable to hold them or, as in the case of Moscow, Stalingrad and Leningrad to occupy them, lost not only the military advantage but the prestige which might have undermined Russian courage.

Russia's fighting forces and the Russian people, themselves, reached the height of their determination to repel the invasion when the Germans sought a showdown over the Soviet Union's three most precious cities. A war that Russia sometimes seemed to be losing could not be called won by the Germans while Leningrad, Moscow and Stalingrad, the symbolic bastions, remained unconquered. This was a matter not merely of railroads, logistics and strong points of military advantage; it was a history-making triumph of the unconquerable spirit of proud people fighting in defense of their homeland. The Germans know now something of what Napoleon Bonaparte learned about the Russians.

Steel Was Ready

THE story of steel in Pittsburgh as told by United States Steel Corp. President Benjamin F. Fairless to that city's Chamber of Commerce Thursday is typical of its story in every steel town.

Pittsburgh was favored by its situation in regard to raw materials, transportation and markets. Through the years it developed a population of Americans highly trained in steel production. It faces the future with all its original advantages still in its favor; except for railroad rates, Mr. Fairless finds no reason to fear for Pittsburgh's future as a steel city.

When war came, steel was ready. It had the workers, the skill and the capacity to do the job. It had them because it had accepted responsibility to be ready to meet needs beyond the average. It hopes to be ready for future emergencies, and it especially hopes that government will raise no needless obstacles against its continued improvement.

"American business pays the taxes, its payroll and its other costs out of what it receives for its products," Mr. Fairless told his Pittsburgh audience. "The sum left over goes to the stockholders as a return for the use of their funds, or is reserved for the future needs of the particular enterprise. There is no magic about corporate finance. A corporation is exactly like an individual in this respect: It cannot for long spend more than it receives without 'going broke.' It is simple arithmetic that if corporate costs, whether they be taxes or wages or something else, are to increase, money must be found to pay the bill, and this in most instances can be accomplished only by an advance in the selling prices of industry's products."

Rep. Carlson's Comeback

THERE is a measure of grim justice in the fact that Rep. Frank Carlson, Kansas Republican, has introduced a bill to simplify individual income tax returns. Rep. Carlson was sponsor in the house of the proposal to simplify the income tax process by the so-called Ruml plan.

His aim then was current payment of taxes. His bill provided for starting current pay ments on March 15, 1943, with no hangover complications. Later, he and his backers made certain concessions to satisfy legitimate objections concerning "windfalls," but their idea continued to be the simplification of returns and collection.

In the end, nothing was left of their proposal, except the collection plan. A Democratic bloc in congress, inspired by the treasury and embittered by the fact the minority party had taken the initiative in tax reform, succeeded in balling through perhaps the most confusing tax law on record. The result will be a national headache until order is brought out of chaos.

Rep. Carlson's new proposal follows the general line of eliminating returns for all persons whose liability is substantially withheld at the source, with returns permitted at the taxpayers' option. The latter privilege would take care of taxpayers with special claims for exemptions.

It is based on the sound principle that Americans do not object to their money being taxed when the cause is worthy, but do object and always will object to needless taxation of their patience. Better luck this time, Rep. Carlson.

News Behind the News

Roosevelt "Bill of Rights" Raises Many Questions About Our Future.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — The Roosevelt bomb which produced the widest reaction in his current program was his second bill of rights. He listed eight.

The right to a good job, wage, fair farm price, business freedom from monopolies (and foreign cartels), a decent home, medical care, social security, education.

This new bill of rights is not a bill of new rights. They always existed (with the possible exception of foreign cartels, formerly beyond their reach). They exist today.

Every man has a "right" to a good job, home, medical care, and so on. We have long had laws for business freedom against monopolies, have something of a social security system, and an unequaled educational system.

Who Shall Furnish Them?

The only difference of opinion which will cause any dispute is whether the federal government shall furnish them—that is, materially and directly provide more of them, as Mr. Roosevelt apparently wishes. Formerly, the working theory of this Democracy was that each man should be given the opportunity to provide them for himself—that is, to earn enough to pay for his home, medical care, and so on.

Here now, planning for a fresh start at the end of the war, the question must arise as to which of these courses is best to follow—not just best politically, but what is most practical, what is most likely to provide "the greater good for the greater number."

If Mr. Roosevelt is going to undertake in peacetime to have the federal government itself furnish each man each job, fix his wages, fix his farm price, build his income, provide his medical care and direct his education — as is being done now in wartime — this nation will be totalitarian, not Democratic.

Question for Citizens

But that is an academic argument, even though it is the most decisive focal point of all questions today. What the citizens now will want to figure out for himself is:

Will it be better for him that way? Will the common man, the average citizen, get more out of it? Will he get more by having the federal government provide these things than by having the government fulfill only its old responsibility of providing leadership for a prosperous and stable country?

I think the question answers itself in light of all unchallengeable facts of history. No government ever did provide better homes, jobs, medical care, or education than in this country — or better rights of any kind, especially individual freedom and independence.

Can the government build better homes than the people build for themselves (remember Mrs. Roosevelt's Arthurdale, a name synonymous with Waterloo, or Greenbelt, which caused Rex Tugwell to be fired?)

Federal Medical Care

Will it provide better medical care if you must have a political drag to get a good doctor, and will the doctors themselves have the same initiative in your behalf if they work on a federal salary and the whole nation medically becomes a clinic?

Would education be any better under more federal control?

Would there be more and better jobs if the government assumes more responsibility for providing this "right" than if the right of good business is maintained and the man is allowed freedom of employment?

Would wages be higher, or just unions? If so, prices will be higher and no one would benefit. Perhaps the average man would suffer, as has the white collar man during this war.

Social Security

Is social security more widespread among people if the government provides a monthly pittance to a few, or if a prosperous country is maintained in which the private insurance, private homes, investments and government bonds of all the people are protected?

As for farm prices, they are supposed to be fixed now, and the farmers dissatisfied. But if the federal government satisfied them, would the average citizen get any more out of it, or would he have to pay higher prices?

Nearly all these steps require more federal spending, with what? Not deficit financing, with the debt mounting to $200,000,000,000. Only from taxation, money from the pocket of the average man.

Gets Job He Didn't Want

Hannegan Decided To Accept a Challenge.

By NED NORDNESS
Associated Press Features Writer

WASHINGTON — Robert Emmet Hannegan hadn't wanted the job, but powerful groups screamed such protest at the mere mention of his name that he decided to accept the challenge.

"I'll show them," Bob said.

So he showed them as collector of internal revenue for the eastern district of Missouri. He was so good he came to Washington as commissioner of internal revenue. He was so good, Democratic party leaders overrode his objections and have elected him chairman of the Democratic national committee.

That is a peanut profile of the young unknown who came out of the Middle West—the 40-year-old St. Louis attorney who was chosen to guide the task of remolding the Democratic party to meet the resurgent Republican challenge.

Genial, athletic Bob Hannegan is referred to as another Jim Farley, an Irish Catholic who started in politics as a youth, and who has stressed the sports theme of teamwork in his business and political dealings. Teamwork will be paramount in welding the party into one compact unit. For one thing, he must pacify southern Democrats who have threatened to secede.

ROBERT HANNEGAN
They Made Him Say Yes

• • •

Up from the Ranks

The cleft-chinned Democrat began his lucky climb through the tough and tumble maze of Missouri politics. From a ward committeeman in 1923 he rose to St. Louis city comptroller, relinquishing that post February, 1942, after the Democrats won and failed to unseat Republican Governor Forrest C. Donnell.

It was because of the part St. Louis Democrats played in the unseating campaign that various groups objected to Hannegan's appointment to the regional revenue post. Both of Missouri's Democratic senators, Harry S. Truman and Bennett C. Clark, endorsed him, however.

Hannegan quickly proved himself an able organizer and leader in the revenue business. He ordered courtesy and prompt service by employes, tried to make tax-paying as painless as possible by eliminating long lines at the cashiers windows and setting up income tax-paying branches in newspaper offices and elsewhere.

He went to night school to study taxation.

Weekly "Gripe" Sessions

The result was his elevation to commissioner of internal revenue last Oct. 9. Next thing income tax payers knew, the agency was becoming quite chummy, addressing letters to them personally instead of "Dear Sir." They liked it.

In the department Hannegan held weekly staff meetings to hear and solve "gripe" problems. Shortly before resigning, he promoted establishment of schools throughout the country where men of his bureau could teach war plant workers and others the intricacies of filling out an income tax form.

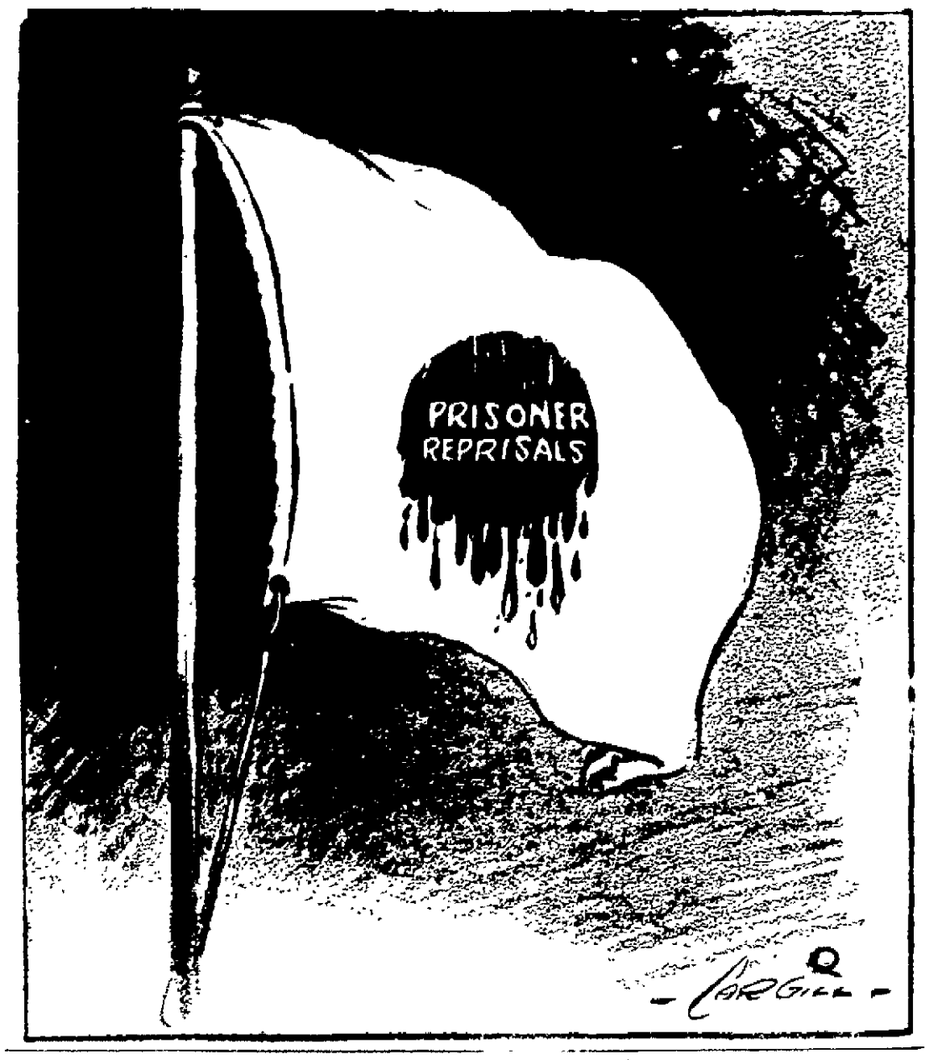
Hannegan reads carefully everything he signs. One day he found seven staff members, picked at random, who did not. They do now.

Son of a police captain, Hannegan was graduated from the School of Law at St. Louis University in 1925. He earned letters in football, basketball, baseball, swimming and track.

He not only attends sports these days but whips up a good game of golf, trimming consistently Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. and Secretary of Navy Knox. Knox, a stuborn loser, asserts it isn't Hannegan's playing, but his own advanced age—in the 60s—that beats him.

It is generally believed Morgenthau projected Hannegan toward the Democratic national chairmanship and that War Mobilization Director James V. Byrnes supervised the groundwork. It was a move first opposed by Hannegan, who had to be talked to by President Roosevelt and other party leaders before indicating his willingness to take the reins.

"OLD GORY"



Today and Tomorrow

William Allen White Praised As Clear Thinker Who Spoke Candidly.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN the town of Emporia, Kan., one of the most widely beloved Americans of our time died Saturday. For nearly 50 years he said what was in his mind so that none could misunderstand where he stood on the greatest issues which have aroused our people, and again and again he was a crusader for his convictions.

It was not then by hiding his opinions for fear of offending those who disagreed with him that he won and held the affectionate confidence of men and women in every walk of life and of every faction and every sect.

Will White was loved because he did in fact give unto others that which they were then irresistibly drawn to give back to him, and would have been uncomfortably ashamed not to give back to him. He liked them enough to enjoy them.

He liked, and he had the eye of a poet to discern, that thing in each other man which, when all the tumult and the shouting are over, is still the best thing the other man is and could be. And to this, because modern men are lonely in their souls and are hungry for fellowship, his countrymen responded, and they laughed with him at themselves and at him with themselves, and felt comforted and were made whole again.

Democracy at Best

His life is the proof that democracy is more than a method of government, and more than the liberties and equalities of men. It is a fraternity which holds men together against anything that could divide them. It cools their fevers, subdues their appetites and restrains them from believing and saying and doing those irreconcilable, irreparable, inexpiable things which burst asunder the bonds of affection and of trust.

Will White was a gifted writer, a shrewd politician, a fascinating person and something of a prophet. But what made him the greatest single influence for good in the journalism and in the public life of our age was that he was an example of how a free citizen can be entirely independent within the community of his fellow men.

He could not and would not become separated from them. He was never crabbed, envenomed, fanatical because he felt instinctively and knew by experience that the community must go on, and indeed will go on, no matter who wins the argument, who carries the election, who has triumph and who the disappointment.

This is the positive virtue of which tolerance is only the negative aspect. And this is the true patriotism of a democracy that a man should, as William Allen White did, love his countrymen along with his country.

Guided Many

All my life since I first became aware of anything, I have known him and, like countless others, have leaned upon him as younger men do upon older men. He was something to lean upon, far more solid and more genuine than the enumerated abstractions and the series of generalities by which we have sought to express the democratic faith in this age when faith had become dim and the faith is challenged.

As long as I can remember when any one wished to find out or was advising some one from abroad how to find out what was the American view at the heart of the nation and in its purest form, he turned as a matter of course to William Allen White in Emporia, Kan.

Yet he was no more the average or the typical American than was Lincoln or than Churchill is the average and typical Englishman. He was a representative man who could have been only an American, could have matured only on this soil and in this tradition. But he was not the composite average of the American qualities, the good and the bad: he represented what these varied qualities are meant to be and are capable of being. That is why he touched men's hearts. For they felt that somehow he was something of which they who live on the same soil and in the same tradition were meant to be.

Fathers

Almost half the fathers in the United States with dependent children are of draft age, according to statisticians of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Data based on the 1940 census shows there are 15,700,000 fathers with wives and children under 18, and of this total, 7,000,000 were at the ages liable to military service.

More than half the husbands under age 25 are fathers, and about three-fourths of those between ages 30 and 37 support at least one child under 18. The statisticians show also that "when the husband is under 30 years, practically all the children are under age 10, and many years away from self-support. In cases where the family head is between 30 and 34, about four-fifths of the families are composed entirely of children under 10.

"The responsibility for the future population of the country rests mainly upon men who are still fairly young or in middle life," the statisticians point out. "Ordinarily these men provide for the current needs of their families and, in addition, for the contingency that their earning capacity may be curtailed because of physical disability, or terminated by death."

$10,000 Cash

Runyon Bonus Plan Would Give War Veterans What They Deserve and Without Ease

By DAMON RUNYON

IF I had the fixing of the bonus that a nation must surely pay its veterans at war, I would scale it about as follows:

$10,000 cash to each veteran permanently disabled by wounds sustained in combat. (This sum in addition to the usual disability pension.)

$5,000 to each veteran of actual combat experience overseas.

$2,500 to each veteran who served anywhere, but not in combat zone.

$1,500 to each veteran of under a year's service inside the United States.

My bonus would be supplementary to whatever may be paid the veterans on mustering out. I would raise the staggering sum for the bonus would require not by taxing the people further but by a national lottery.

IN about a dozen states of the Union an estimated nearly $600,000,000 was gambled on horse racing under legal auspices and that despite restrictions on transportation that greatly cut down attendance at the tracks considerably.

Had all the tracks in the nation been running as usual without any restrictions the gambling would have far exceeded $1,000,000,000.

The potential revenue to the government from a national lottery operating in the 48 states has been estimated at $10,000,000,000 per year. I think that estimate too high, but I believe the revenue would reach that figure in time. It would still pay the bonus on the basis I suggest above and leave something to spare.

It would be no burden on the taxpayers of the present or the future. The bonus would be payable and it will fall on the taxpayers unless my plan is adopted. If anything had been needed to make the bonus a certainty, the muddle policy of our statesmen in Washington in the mustering-out pay of the veterans was the trick. It reflected that spirit of ingratitude toward the veterans that has been characteristic of Washington in all our wars.

THIS time the bonus will have to be paid in a hurry after the war is over, not years later. The veterans of this war will come home with the most formidable political bludgeon in their grasp ever possessed by any group in our history. They will be home by the upward of 10,000,000 votes of their own and perhaps controlling as many more. I would like to see the politicians try to hold out on that kind of power.

About the only argument I hear against a lottery is that it might encourage gambling among our people. But if you reflect on the $800,000,000 gambled on horse racing alone, and remember that this just happens to be the only gambling device on which we get an official line and that the sum mentioned is probably not one tenth of the total gambled on all forms of gambling in the United States last year, you can see that the argument is a little weak.

THE government shares in the horse gambling to the extent of collecting taxes in various forms, and it also assesses gambling other money wherever it can be traced. I therefore fail to see why there would be anything wrong in the government running its own lottery especially for the purpose of rewarding its heroes by keeping a load off the taxpayers.

I am told that the administration is opposed to a lottery. But it has also opposed to a number of other things on which it has had a change of mind, and maybe it will switch on the lottery if only for the reason of giving the people a little run for their money.

Greetings

By Truman Twill

THIS fellow on the bus, when he saw a babe he knew, wasted no time in a long about approach. When he passed her, he reached across the passenger sitting next to the babe, pinched the babe's cheek, grinned and went on back to his standing room. The babe smiled back. Now that, customers, is our idea of greeting.

There's so much effort wasted on greeting man and boy, woman and daughter. We will not mention kissing, which is unsanitary to boot, but just think of the gabbing and the waving and grabbing that goes on in connection with saying hello. "Oh darling you're looking lovely...where are you getting your clothes?...I'm so glad to be here....And are those lovely children!...And isn't your home beautiful...Oh and I heard the nicest thing about you today." That kind of stuff.

If that's too tough to think about, just think about the people who must get their services from you to do the greeting job right. There are the squeezers, arm-around pests, hand-shakers, back thumpers, rib pokers and, worst of all, the two-handed holders. These pests deserve special mention. They either grab you by both hands or grab one hand and hold that while they fasten a clutch on your elbow, shoulder or, perhaps, if you are too young to defend yourself, reach out to pat you on the head.

Even the merely vocal greeters are a little silly. "I am so glad to see you." What does that mean? How much glad is it to be? Who cares that "How are you?" business that goes on year after year. Obviously, nobody is expected to tell how he is. Anyone who really tries to give an honest answer will be left standing on the curb before he has even mentioned the state of his inside, or the buzzling in his left ear.

The fellow on the bus had an idea. Not a big one, but an idea. At least there is nothing critical or stuffy about pinching a babe lightly on the cheek. The only objection which strikes us as being any bet at the moment is one favored by an associate who is deaf. He never knows what the people he meets may be saying, so he never moves his lips till they've stopped talking, then lets out a window-shaking voice, "Yow" to cover anything or nothing, and it never leads to further nonsense. The women look startled and pleased. The men look puzzled but seem to be receiving a pleasure. Together we are practicing for special occasions. We may get through life with "Yow" and a pinch, and have a lot more fun than we do now.

So They Say—

[illegible] Robinson, Canton Lehman's coach and former proxy of the Ohio High School Football Coaches' association suffered a black eye in a scrap with Massillon's Elwood Kammer as the Tigers beat Robinson's club 62 to 60. 16-year-old Charley Sweet of the Norwalk club scored 23 points against Fremont and then was shot in the leg by the timers, after which he was "shot" again with anti-tetanus serum; Lloyd Eddy of Union suffered a fractured arm in a scramble for the ball; Don Sands, junior guard for Ironton, was knocked unconscious in a fall, and his mates "blew" a five-point lead and the game to Huntington, W. Va., while he was "out," and Wooster had to call on a reserve dressed in street clothes to finish the game against Londonville after several Wooster cagers went out on fouls.

Dayton Chaminade, St Henry and Fredericktown were listed out of the undefeated class, but Clarksburg, Washington C. H. and Niles popped up with their first victories of the campaign. Lima Central, class A semi-finalist last season, hasn't won a game in 10 starts.

Kingston divided its six points among five players as it scored only one field goal in bowing to Centralia 30 to 6. Acanville topped the century scoring mark with a 103-28 verdict over Washington Twp. as center Russ Gregg pounded the hoop for 40 points. Alex Grozo, Martins Ferry's big center, whipped 36 points into the basket in a 59-32 win over Steubenville, and Max Kephart of Middlepoint got 34 of his team's points in a 40-36 conquest of Delphos-Jefferson.

Martins Ferry, rolling along undefeated, has piled up 825 points to 132 scored against it, an offensive average of almost 69 per contest, for the state's best mark. Bluffton with a two-points-a-minute average of 64.4, appears tops in class B.

Yorkville, defending class B champion, has been beaten 11 times in 19 starts, but only one defeat was by a class B opponent and that came at a time the Yorks were hampered by illness. Eight of last year's tournament 10 are missing from the Yorkville roster.

Gra-Y Boon To Harding Basketball Teams

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

When [illegible] boys of elementary age [illegible] inducted into the local Y. M. C. A. athletic program [illegible] years ago, Y officials probably did not [illegible] the [illegible] effect [illegible] of the participants.

But [illegible] the first year or [illegible] addition to the Y organization [illegible] has proved a big asset to [illegible] city.

Reference is to the [illegible] Gra-Y [illegible] program of the Y. M. C. A., [illegible] open to boys [illegible] years.

No fewer than four members of the Harding High varsity at one time competed on Gra-Y teams. One of the V-1 President's has compiled such an admirable record against stiff opposition this season, are Gra-Y alumni.

But the full effect of the Y. M. C. A.'s grade school basketball probably will not be felt for another season or two. The value of the experience gleaned from Gra-Y play is shown more than ever on the city's three junior high school teams, Central, Vernon and Edison. Practically all of the junior high cagers played on Gra-Y teams in their grade school days.

Perhaps the Gra-Y program will mean a new era in Harding High school basketball. The Presidents varsity roster starting next year are bound to have more Gra-Y graduates. These boys naturally will have had two more years' actual cage competition under their belts than most of this year's Harding Prexy squad.

Secret of Success

You probably know that the secret of the success of Massillon and Canton McKinley in turning out perennial championship football teams lies in their highly developed grade school "feeder" systems. In those two advanced sports towns, a boy who shows any inclination whatsoever toward athletics receives beginners instruction not in the seventh grade, as in Marion and most other communities, but in the first grade, his very first year of school. Of course, he is started out at a slow, easy-going pace, but progress as a rule proves to be speedy and by the time the Massillon or Canton boy is in the fourth grade he is as far advanced as a seventh or eighth grader in practically any other Ohio city.

A majority of Marionites probably are aware of these facts, which have been expounded upon time and again by certain "gripers," who would like to see Marion be another Massillon but don't do anything about it.

Instead of football outstripping basketball in popularity in Marion as has been the case as long as high school athletics have been in existence here, the situation may be reversed in the next few years. And one of the principal causes of this transformation would be the Gra-Y leagues of the Y. M. C. A., which take the place of the regular grade school teams that the Massillons and Cantons have.

New Crop Coming

The present Harding High senior class, the one which will be graduated this spring is likely to be the last Marion class that will not have benefitted from Gra-Y basketball experience. The program was begun the year after this year's seniors wound up their elementary school days. The Harding juniors, the class of 1945, however, were on the first Gra-Y teams five years back but probably didn't get the quality of helpful instruction that Gra-Y boys of the present are getting.

All fifth and sixth graders in the city, including both public and Parochial school pupils, are eligible for participation is the Gra-Y basketball leagues and general activities. Twelve schools are represented in this year's Gra-Y set up.

At the head of Gra-Y is Marion Mewhorter, Y. M. C. A. program director. He is assisted by several high school boys who serve as leaders of the various Gra-Y clubs. Each leader is expected to have a well-rounded knowledge of basketball and other sports and gets, on the side, a few pointers on how to govern a group of boys without incurring their dislike and distrust.

Other sports, which though secondary in importance to basketball, nevertheless play indispensable roles in the furthering of the Gra-Y physical ideals and standards are swimming, baseball, and various informal sports, such as ping pong and shuffle-board. In the spring and fall the Gra-Y boys receive spiritual and educational instruction in the form of special addresses by local civic and religious leaders, hikes to the country to study wild life, and group discussions.

Getting back to the basketball phase of Gra-Y, the boys on the Harding High varsity who used to play on Gra-Y teams are Elvin Beach (Pearl Street) Marshall Zuck (Pearl Street), and Fritz Guy (Greenwood), juniors and Don Shirk (Oakland), sophomore. Harding reserve players formerly associated with Gra-Y teams, the names of which are indicated in parenthesis are: Bob England (North Main), Carl Harbolt (North Main), Dave Lee (Forest Lawn), Ralph Weber (Forest Lawn), Ed Preston (George Washington), Ray Ballinger (Pearl), Dick Holliday (Oakland), and Paul Myers (Oakland). All of these JayVees are sophomores.

In the varsity junior high school league, the following are former Gra-Y leaguers:

Vernon — John Courtright (Greenwood), Don Dutt (George Washington), James Leoffert (Greenwood), Don West (Mark), Dick Armbruster (Greenwood), Bob Short (Greenwood), Bill Virden (George Washington), Kenny Mull (Oak), and John Boyles (Forest Lawn).

Edison — Jim Willis, Jim Cramer, Dick Huddle, Glen Massie, and [illegible] Henry, [illegible] Jim Fogle, [illegible] Don Zeisler (all Pearl Street); [illegible] Larry Powell, Gene Andrews, and [illegible] Jim Riley (all North Main); [illegible] Jim Stetson, Orville Davis (Oakland), and Charles [illegible] Jack Deffner, Jim Murphy, Rayo (St. Mary's).

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—Baseball's biggest post-war problem, according to National league prexy Ford Frick, may be "making up for our sins now." . . . Frick did not elaborate on the "sins" but he had been talking about schedule difficulties caused by extra night games, synthetic doubleheaders, etc., so you can get an idea. . . . Capt. Hank Greenberg, now a student at the Army's school for special services at Washington and Lee university, says: "I've been in the Army three years now and I don't know anything about baseball." . . . He'd still have a hard time convincing the Briggs stadium bleacherites.

Wonder if any one-coach high school can beat this? . . . In 21 years that Wallace Bailey (West Point 1921) has been coaching at Russellville, Ark., High school, his teams have compiled this record: football, won 150, lost 19, tied 15; track, won 81, lost 21; basketball, won 292, lost 101; golf, won 15, lost 5. . . . The school, with 230 students, meets such teams as Little Rock, Fort Smith and Hot Springs every year . . . P. S.: Bailey also is senior high school principal.

RANDALL APPLIES FOR RACE PROGRAM

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND Feb. 1—Running races will return to the North Randall track for the first time in four years if the Ohio state racing commission approves the application of a new promoting group.

Don W. Finlay, spokesman for the Randall Park Racing association, said his organization had bought out the plant's lien holders and had taken a five-year lease on the property.

The group has applied to the commission for a 26-day running meet from May 26 to June 24 and an 18-day grand circuit harness program from June 26 to July 15.

Running races were last held in 1940 when the North Randall Racing association operated the track. Grand circuit races were held at Randall last year for the first time since 1938.

Operators of Ascot park three-quarter mile track between Cleveland and Akron, have asked dates for two meetings—June 3-24 and July 20-Aug. 19.

Baseball's Problem Is To Find Place for Returning Vets

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 — Recent discussions of baseball's farm system—for and against—may have led to the belief that when baseball's post-war planning committee meets Saturday, the minor league setup will be the principal problem.

The idea, says Ford C. Frick, National league president and a member of the committee, is all wrong. Frick doesn't believe there will be much talk about farms at the outset because there are more immediate problems to settle.

The most pressing matter still is how the ball players who return from the services when the war ends can be absorbed. That, he says, affects the fairly immediate future. If the war should end say in the middle of next summer we would have to have the machinery ready to take care of these men.

"We don't know where we could use them or when; whether a fellow who has been in the Army a couple of years still can play major league baseball or how long it will take him to get into shape. Our problem is to provide enough flexibility to cover all contingencies."

The National league president also pointed out the legal requirement that a baseball club, just like any other business, must reemploy a returning soldier in approximately the same position that he held before the war within 40 days after he applies for reinstatement. Under present conditions, with major league clubs restricted to 25 active players and a reserve list of 40, the only solution would be to release enough men to make room for those who returned."

Galion Seabee Finds Daughter Growing Up

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 1—It didn't take long for 21-month-old Kay Hookstra to become acquainted with her daddy, after she was lifted at Akenel early in the morning when he arrived from Guadalcanal.

On a 30-day leave, with time out for traveling, which left 26 days to be spent with his family, Kay's father is Chief Petty Officer Edward T. Hookstra of Ashland, a former Galion boy. He's been spending that time with his wife and daughter in Ashland, and with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hookstra of Galion. When Hookstra left the states on Nov. 29, 1942, as a member of the Seabees, his daughter was not quite six months old.

Hookstra was a star football, basketball and baseball player at Ashland college and also at Galion High school. He will say goodbye to his family again, next Thursday, when he starts from Cleveland by plane for a redistribution center in California.

His work on the island has had to do with the construction of roads, work at Henderson field and the airfields. He saw much improvement on the island by the Americans, refrigeration installed, an attractive chapel built, hospital established, and various buildings constructed.

It's a small world, even in the vast Pacific, were probably Hookstra's thoughts when he met Pvt. Glen Groh, a Galion boy, stationed with the Army on Guadalcanal. Sidney Knable and John Britton, both Galion boys with the Seabees.

Hookstra's wife is teaching school in Ashland.

BALLOT

by Rep. Worley (D-Tex), it will be a severe setback to the uniform ballot sponsors.

Taft declared Barkley "apparently blames the delay on the opponents of a federal ballot plan."

"I didn't indicate I blamed anyone," Barkley retorted. "I hope the senator from Ohio is not troubled in his conscience to the extent that he attributes to me something I didn't say."

An assertion by Taft that President Roosevelt had impugned the "motives of all senators" who oppose the federal ballot touched off a heated exchange between him and Senator Lucas.

Jumping to his feet, Lucas strode into the well of the senate and shouted to Taft.

"Did you go out to Ohio and make a couple of speeches accusing the backers of the Green-Lucas bill of fraud?"

"Yes I did," Taft snapped.

Then Taft explained he had said the "federal ballot is a fraud on the soldiers of the United States." But, he added, "I said nothing about any member of the senate."

"Well, who's responsible for the bill?" Lucas demanded. "If that isn't a clear implication of fraud against those who voted for it, then I don't understand the English language. I don't like it and I'm not going to take it without protesting."

Lucas added that he, like Taft, believed the President was "wrong" in referring to the states' rights bill as a fraud, asserting:

"I so stated on the floor of the senate, but that didn't satisfy the senator from Ohio. He went out and made the same kind of charge. He wants to get in the same boat as the President. He (Taft) is a candidate now for President of the United States."

Bucyrus Man Prisoner of Japs in Philippines

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Jan. 31—Concern for the safety of Capt. Augustus Cullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cullen, who was taken prisoner in the fall of Corregidor, is felt by relatives here since announcement was made this week of atrocities against American prisoners.

Two cards, one received in August and the other in December, last year, have brought the only word from the army office since his capture.

Capt. Cullen is believed to be at Camp No. 1, which was not mentioned in the national dispatches.

Japs Laugh in Derision as They Kill Wounded Americans

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—Japanese laughed derisively as they bayoneted wounded American soldiers in an ambush attack on New Georgia islands last July, J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press war correspondent, wrote in a story from there last July which inspired one of the first atrocity posters printed by the Army in this war.

Lodge has returned to the United States.

Distribution of the posters among factories in support of the nation was begun today.

The story said the Japs broke through the Munda trail and attacked a little convoy along the Barizoko river near what formerly was a frontline of foxholes. Eyewitnesses estimated 25 out of the 40 litter cases were killed.

A detail of 25 Americans guarding a waterhole on the trail had received word of the Jap advance and rushed to aid the convoy. Lieut. Nicholas T. Kliebert, junior Michigan national guardsman who had charge of the detail, told Lodge:

"The Japs who got through to one of our litter cases propped the man against a tree and the Japs took turns bayoneting him. I got three of them. Several times we saw Japs pull blankets off litter cases and then line up and take turns machoeing them.

"They cut one of the poor lads from the top of his head to his feet, meanwhile laughing deliriously. They shot him through the head.

"We couldn't stand that so we let the oncoming hordes alone and turned the new cooled-off rifles into the Japs among our wounded and killed six of them. But the others kept up their dirty work.

"One of them evidently was an officer for he had a sword. Using both hands, he raised the weapon overhead to strike one of our men. In doing so he cleaved the head off one of his own men, who was standing behind him. * * *

Americans Fight Back

"Five more of our boys, now freed from the job of taking back the wounded, dashed in swinging their bayonets and knives. Many Japs fell dead, but only after they had hacked to death a number of litter cases, including officers.

"But the Japs were not through. They started a systematic grenading of the foxholes in which the walking wounded had taken refuge. They had cleaned out four holes and I was in the fifth with a private, whose name I do not know. He said 'Let's make a run for it. All they can do is to shoot us down.' We ran!"

Later, lying in the bush, Lieut. Kliebert heard some sharp commands and stealing forward "we saw some Japs with one of our wounded putting him through close order drill. When the lad fell they'd kick him and prod him with a bayonet.

"They finally grew tired of their game and dragged the lad into the bushes," Lieut. Kliebert said. "I don't know what happened to him, but I can guess."

STRIKE THREATENS WILLOW RUN PLANT

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Feb. 1 — A Ford Motor Co. spokesman said a dispute over a wage increase this morning threatened to curtail production of bombers at the Ford-operated Willow Run plant.

The spokesman said 160 workers on a night shift remained in the plant after quitting time and that 825 day shift workers joined them in a protest against failure to obtain a 5-cent hourly wage increase.

Production of steel in the rolling mill of the Ford Rouge plant, curtailed Monday by a walkout of more than 1,000 workers, returned to normal as company and union officials agreed to meet to iron out differences, and day shift workers reported on the job. This dispute, a spokesman for the management said, followed deduction of 15 minutes' pay from envelopes of 38 men for time lost last week when the group congregated around the clocks 15 minutes early.

Pickets continued to walk in front of Rouge plant gates to call attention to a strike of 600 laboratory technicians who have been idle since Jan. 18 seeking recognition of an independent union.

There was no immediate comment from leaders of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) on the disputes.

DO WE HAVE TO DIE?

A famous man in Los Angeles, known as The Voice of Two Worlds, reveals the story of a remarkable system that often leads to almost unbelievable improvement in power of mind, achievement in brilliant business and profession and success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased physical strength, magnetic personality, assurance and poise.

The man, a well-known explorer and geographer, tells how he learned these strange methods in mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few outsiders permitted to visit it. Now he learned rare secrets long hidden practices, jealously guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled them to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us, and explains how to use them are simplified so that they can be used by almost any person of average intelligence.

He explains that man, instead of being limited by a one-man-mind, has within him the power of a thousand men or more, as well as the energy-power to do which can be used to solve affairs. He states that this giant of mind-power, when developed, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments, and the prolonging of youthful vigor in many fields.

To that eternal question, "Do we have to die?", his answer is astounding.

The author states the time has come for this long-hidden system to be disclosed to the Western world, and offers to send his amazing 9,000-word treatise—which reveals many startling results—to sincere readers of this paper, free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. H-657, Los Angeles, 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly, as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed.—Adv.

More Successful Public Sales
Words cannot express our appreciation for the large attendance of fine people who attended our public sales. Many times we have read the letters of appreciation by customers of Col. F. E. Williams, our auctioneer, but we did not really stop to think what they really meant until we had a public sale of our own, and now since we have had our sales, we can join hundreds of others in this plan of expressing our appreciation for our many old and new friends who attended our sales and help make them very successful. Best wishes to each of you and thanks a million for your visit to our homes.

Public Notice
During my 21 years in the auction business, I must say that the past few months have been the most pleasant of all, more kindness shown me, more people who are glad to meet friends, more people who seem to appreciate an auctioneer who tries to help buyer and the seller, more people who seem to like my idea of many friends and no pals, more people who appreciate a money-back guarantee from the auctioneer, and I must say that words cannot express my appreciation for the fine attendance at the above mentioned sales.

GRAIN PRICES DRIFT FRACTIONALLY LOWER

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—All grain prices eased fractionally lower today in quiet trade. The lower trend in wheat reflected failure of expected milling demand to materialize and acted as a depressing factor on other grains which earlier had advanced fractionally on some buying.

Rye futures rallied from the day's low as offerings on the downturn were well absorbed but failed to recover fully from the setback. Only interest in the wheat pit was in moderate changing from May to September contracts at around a 3 cent difference.

SPECIALTIES PROP MARKET

Trading Shows Little Activity As Buyers Await More Definite War News.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 — The persistent investment appetite for specialties provided the principal prop for today's stock market.

As in the past month or so leaders generally held to a slim area as many potential purchasers stood aloof to await important war developments, successful ending of the war loan drive and indications as to the effect forthcoming taxes will have on industry.

Peakings picked up a little after a slow start, with volume largely in low-priced stocks, and gains of fractions to a point or more were well distributed near the fourth hour.

Favored were International Telephone, Pullman, Paramount Pictures, N. Y. Central, Woolworth, Radio Corp., Farnsworth Television, Worthington Pump and Pepsi-Cola. Steels, Rubber, Motors, oils and coppers did little or nothing.

REPUBLICANS PLAN LINCOLN DINNERS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—With at least three potential presidential candidates in action, Republicans will start beating the 1944 political kettledrums next week at an estimated 2,000 Lincoln day dinners and meetings in all sections of the country.

Chairman Harrison E. Spangler said reports reaching national headquarters indicated more meetings would be held this year than at any time in the last decade.

Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 nominee who has not yet announced his candidacy, and Gov. Bricker of Ohio who has are booked for major speeches in which they are expected to outline their positions on national issues.

Bricker will speak Feb. 10 at a banquet arranged here by Republican members of the house and senate and the league of Republican women. Word has come out of Ohio to watch for a "new approach" by the governor to the issues of the hour.

Harding Hi-Y Five Wins from Edison

Harding Senior Hi-Y cagers defeated the Edison Hi-Y 43 to 25, as the City Hi-Y league season sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. passed the half way mark last night. The game was played on the Y floor.

Unlucky or not, the four highest scorers had scores of 13. Players turning the unlucky number to their advantage were Moore, Wahlgren and Williams of the Senior Hi-Y squad, and Craft of Edison's team.

Harding Junior Hi-Y defeated a Harding Sophomore Hi-Y five, 32 to 30, in the second game last night. High scorer was Bender of the Soph team with 16 points marked in his favor.

Fierce but apparently indecisive battles were being fought in Slavonia and the Lika province of Croatia, the war bulletin reported. In Macedonia German and Albanian mercenary forces were locked in a two-weeks-old struggle with Tito's troops in the area between Jresovo and Kumanovo. Local fighting was reported from other widely separated localities.

Americans Take Piano To War

By The Associated Press

AN AMERICAN AIRBORNE IN ITALY, Jan. 21—(Delayed)—The only piano brought along on the Italian invasion supplies music for a trucking outfit. The chief pecker at the keys is the commander, Lieut. Don Mackin of Norwalk, Conn., a former band leader.

The piano was picked up practically for nothing in Sicily by Sgt. Albert O'Neill of Roxbury, Mass., who has since formed a small five-piece band in the trucking unit. He managed to get it loaded aboard ship along with tanks, guns and other weapons needed to chase the Germans.

"I had already sweated out that piano through three air raids," said O'Neill, "and I'd be darned if I was going to leave it behind."

Italian farmers are still amazed at people who bring a piano along in war, but they like to chister around the bivouac area and listen to Mackin give out with "When Day is Done" or "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You."

The piano is the chief piece of furniture in the Lost Chord hotel, the name the band has given the tent home of their commander. The tent also has a wooden floor, a homemade stove, special chairs and small table on which the lieutenant and his friends can dine by candlelight.

One of his guests the evening I was there was Lt. Ruth Dobson, a nurse from Greenville, S. C., who told how Mackin and his band had recently entertained patients at a nearby army hospital.

"There wasn't a dry eye in the place when they played the old tunes the boys used to hear back home," she said, "but it sure kept up their morale."

"It's just a small jam band with piano, sax, clarinet, drums and a guitar," said Mackin. "If the war lasts long enough we may have a symphony orchestra before we are through.

"When the boys come back from servicing forward airfields they have chow and then we load the piano on a truck and drive around, putting on shows for other units in the area that don't have a band."

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

FOR AN INSTANT the gangster leaning toward Lillian, stood motionless, silent, palpably taken aback at her denial that she was "Mrs Morton."

I guessed that even in the stress of the moment she was getting a macabre satisfaction out of denying truthfully that the name "Morton" did not belong to her. She had suffered so much at the hands of Marion's rascally father, Tom Morton, before and after her enforced divorce from him, with its corollary of giving up Marion. This she had been forced to do in order to save Ducky, then a mere boy, from undeserved and damning notoriety, and I think she would have been glad to change Marion's surname legally to Underwood if it had not been for her fear of the resultant unpleasant publicity, the raking up of the old story.

Kept Father's Name

Harry Underwood, whom she had met and married in an attempt to "pick up the pieces" and there had been plenty of pieces picked up and dropped again in the tempestuous years before their present complete and tender understanding — would have been only too glad to give his name to his idolized stepdaughter, but the weight of the scales had dipped against that solution, and Marion's name remained that of her dead, but unlamented, father.

But even as the memories called up by Lillian's ringing denial, flashed past my mental camera, the gangster put another low-voiced query, and I saw my old friend's head rear with a regal gesture of which exiled Queen Olga of Transylvania, now Philo Vertiven's wife, could have been proud.

"I am being very patient," she said coldly, "but I really do not see why I should continue this conversation. I do not know you. I never have even seen you before. You asked me if I were Mrs. Morton, and in the belief that you honestly had mistaken me for someone else, I answered your question. But I certainly do not intend to go down the alphabet, denying that my name is Adams, Baker or Clinton. So I must ask you to go back to your own table."

Gangster Shows Rage

I saw his hands, hanging loosely, suddenly clench into fists, and knew that his innate savagery was perilously near to wiping the veneer of civilization from it. That he longed to strike Lillian to the floor with a swift brutal blow I was sure, and found myself trembling with fear for her.

But there was no tremor or a single muscle in Marion's graceful motion. As she finished her scathing reply, she took her eyes away from him as if he did not exist, and lifted her hand with a summoning gesture to the waiter who had been hovering near, whether waiting for her order, or listening under gangster orders to the conversation, I could not tell. I knew, of course that this restaurant must be headquarters for the international racketeers. Whether that meant complete domination of every employee or that some of them, like Crumo, who had brought me Marion's desperate frantic note, were really ignorant, and innocent, of the gang's machinations, I had no way of knowing.

Faith In Crump

Of one thing I was sure, however. Crump did not entertain any suspicion that I, whom he had dismissed to bring me the message from Marion, had left that I could rely on him implicitly, and I was glad to see him approaching our table, evidently to fill the our order. But whether by accident, design, he did not come up to the table after the gangster at Lillian's table had muttered something savagely beneath his breath, and turning on his heel strode out of the restaurant. I decided to give Lillian, and spoke to Marion.

"Well, you were right," he said grudgingly. "She isn't the one I thought she was. But I don't see any coincidence that could explain why she may be taking

Denies Recognition

"She denied," Marion said after a thought, "that she was acquainted with you, I gathered, in tones grown no longer shrill. "Didn't you think I'd have recognized her if she'd really been my—?"

I guessed that somebody's foot had kicked her beneath the table, and pre-vented her from finishing the sentence with the word "mother," a palpable absurdity for Marion's gray wig and make-up, made her look almost as old as did Lillian.

"I suppose you would have recognized your friend," the other man at the table said, and turned the waiter came up with their bore procedures, and they fell to discussing them, as if Lillian's identity meant nothing to any of them.

But I knew that the situation was still smoldering, and I wondered whether or not to add fuel to the fire by any recognition of Crump, who had come up and asked for our order. Acting on my previous instruction, Noel said nothing that we were waiting for two other people to join us, and would order then. But before the man could turn away, I put a seemingly casual query.

"Haven't you waited on me before, somewhere?" I asked, careful to keep my voice low.
